About the Wastewater Treatment Project:

Huu-ay-aht First Nations requires a new wastewater management system for a planned expansion of the Nation's Anacla community. As the existing community is located within the tsunami impact zone, Huu-ay-aht intends to relocate the community to the new subdivision development located on higher lands. BMSC has an existing treatment system that is dated and in need of replacement. As a result, the two entities have partnered to create a new state of the art WWTP that will service not only their needs but has the potential to service the entire community.
